Psalm 62:1-2

"For God alone my soul in silence waits; my salvation comes from Him. He alone is my rock and my salvation, my stronghold; I will never be shaken."

Augustine (354 AD – 430 AD), the brilliant pastor of the Church in ancient Hippo, once famously said, "You have made us for yourself; our souls are restless until the rest in you." The idea of rest is central to the Bible. God rests on the seventh day of creation. The people of Israel are commanded to set apart Saturday as a Sabbath rest. Believers are extolled, warned, and encouraged to enter the rest that is to come in God's kingdom. Clearly rest is something important, more than just getting a good night's sleep or having a lazy afternoon now and then (good as those things may be!).

Rest in the Bible means trusting that God has things in control and that we don't need anything but to be with him. God rested on the seventh day because he knew everything he made was "Very good" (Gen. 1:31); The children of Israel were called to a day of rest so that they would learn their provision did not come solely from their own toil, but from the hand of their loving God; the great Christian hope is to enter the eternal and blessed rest of God's kingdom, where everything will be set right at last and we will be with God forever. And what's more, in the Holy Spirit we can enjoy the beginning of that rest here and now.

The peaceful rest of God's people, the trusting silence of our souls, is a great witness to the feverish an anxious world around us which wants to clamour and toil for every last inch. Just by being at rest ourselves in who God is, we can witness to the great gospel of peace, to the rock and salvation we have in God alone.
